

FROM OUR FARM TO YOUR KITCHEN

Alex's Tomato Farm

Carlisle, NY

Alex Kravets cultivates 70 acres of land, growing herbs, apples, plums, pears, beans, greens, squash, sweet corn, zucchini, eggplant, peppers, tomatoes and more. The family also keeps bees and chickens.

Years ago, Alex Kravets' father, Eugene, was a dentist in the Ukraine when he started farming as a hobby. Before too long, he was running a successful produce business that included six greenhouses. He was able to extend the growing season at a time when it was nearly impossible to find tomatoes outside of July and August in Eastern Europe. "These things were valued very highly," Alex explains, "Nobody was doing what my father was doing. Almost everything agricultural was managed by the government."

In 1986, just before the fall of the Soviet Union, the private sector in the Ukraine was completely dissolved. "All the markets closed in a matter of a few weeks," Alex says, "My father was very disappointed with the government's decision. Everything he was working for was basically for nothing." That's when Mr. Kravets decided to move to New York.

He worked as a dental assistant for the first few years, all the while looking for a place to continue farming. Seven years later, when Alex turned 17 years old, he joined his father in Carlisle, New York, and in 2000, they purchased their first forty acres of land. To honor their early adventures, they included their first crop in the farm's name: Alex's Tomato Farm. Tomatoes

"We recently expanded our orchard. Now we have wonderful grapes in addition to even more varieties of pears, apples, peaches and plums."

– Alex Kravets

were their starting point towards a vibrant and diverse farm today. Now the Kravets cultivate on 70 acres of land and grow herbs, flowers, apples, plums, pears, beans, greens, squash, sweet corn, zucchini, eggplant, peppers, and more. They also enjoy growing a range of varieties of all this produce – and yes -- their crop plan includes twenty kinds of tomatoes alone.

Down to Earth
FARMERS MARKETS

173 Main Street, 3rd Floor
Ossining, New York 10562
914.923.4837 tel
914.801.2336 fax
DowntoEarthMarkets.com